Story:

Once upon a time, there was a young woman named Emily who lived in a quiet neighborhood on the outskirts of town. One day, Emily received a call from her friend, Jenna, who lived in the city. Jenna was planning a night out with some friends and invited Emily to join them.

Excited about the opportunity to spend time with her friend, Emily agreed to go. But as she was getting ready, Emily started to feel uneasy. She had heard stories about how dangerous the city could be, especially at night, and she began to wonder if it was really safe to go out.

Remembering a quote, she had heard - "A prudent person foresees danger and takes precautions" - Emily decided to take some steps to ensure her safety. She made sure to tell a trusted friend where she was going and when she expected to be back, and she also arranged for a taxi to pick her up and take her home at the end of the night.

When Emily arrived in the city, she met up with Jenna and her friends. They spent the evening dancing, chatting, and having fun. However, as the night wore on, Emily noticed that some of the people around them were getting rowdy and starting to cause trouble. Remembering the quote again, Emily knew it was time to leave and called the taxi to take her back home.

The next day, Emily found out that there had been a fight at the bar where she and Jenna had been, and several people had been injured. She realized that if she had not been prudent and taken precautions to ensure her safety, she could have been in serious danger.

From that day forward, Emily made a habit of being more cautious and taking necessary steps to avoid danger. She knew that it was better to be safe than sorry, and she didn't want to take unnecessary risks that could put her life in danger.

Proverbs 23:3

A prudent person foresees danger and takes precautions.

The simpleton goes blindly on and suffers the consequences.
